the Roman Amphorae from Cyprus (ROMACY)^{i*} project and the Maritime Archaeology Research (M.A.RE) Lab
Archaeological Research Unit, Department of History and Archaeology,
University of Cyprus

Second Circular – General Information

<http://www.ucy.ac.cy/amphorae>

Dear Colleagues,

The Organising Committee would like to inform the scientific community that the deadline for the submission of abstracts to the PTPM Conference is now closed. The Organising Committee is thankful for the interest shown towards the Conference, reflected in the number and range of contributions, which touch all the topics stated in the first circular. We are confident that the aims of the conference will be fully achieved, as the contributions of specialists from various fields will undoubtedly enable a synthesis of the data obtained from recent research in the eastern Mediterranean. The end-product will be the increased knowledge on the nature of amphora studies, production and trade in this part of the Empire, as well as between the eastern and western Mediterranean.

General information is provided below, concerning certain practical matters and the publication of the proceedings.

We are looking forward to welcoming you all in Cyprus,

The Organising Committee

Agenda

The conference will comprise oral presentations, practical workshops, and an excursion.

Venue

The conference will take place at the Archaeological Research Unit (12 Gladstone street, Nicosia).

Papers

Oral presentations should not exceed 15 minutes, due to the large number of contributions and the need to include in the programme all the workshops promised in the first circular.

Participants are encouraged to use PowerPoint, and to submit their presentation to the conference secretary at registration.

Language

English will be the official language of the conference.

Publication

As stated in the first circular, for logistical reasons, it is imperative that the conference proceedings are published by 2014.

Deadline for the submission of papers for publication: All speakers are kindly requested to provide the first draft of their paper no later than 30 April 2013.

Language: English.

Word limit: max. 6000 words (bibliography included).

Number of figures: 4 in black and white (only 1 can be published in colour, unless the figures comprise thin-sections).

Further details on the publisher and the guidelines of publication will be sent to you shortly.

Fees

There will be no registration fees.

PTPM Website

The PTPM Conference website can be accessed at:

<http://www.ucy.ac.cy/amphorae>

Please visit the website for information on accommodation, and other general information. The Conference programme and the abstracts will also be uploaded on the website. For this reason, please return the attached abstract with your corrections within the next five days.

Further details on the sessions, the Conference programme, and the publication will be provided in the third circular.
